科目概論

This course is designed to provide students with basic competency in diagnosis and management of swallowing impairment (dysphagia). While the course will focus on dysphagia, an understanding of normal function is paramount to understand the underlying issues having to do with age, anatomy, physiology, and the neurological substrates of swallowing.

學習目標

Students will learn current methods of assessment, interpretation of evaluation findings, and how to select treatment based on those findings. The importance of evidence-based treatment, or selection of treatment based on sound theoretical principles will be an emphasis throughout the course. Upon completion of this course, students will be expected to have a basic understanding of the normal and impaired swallowing physiology. They will also be knowledgeable about the assessment and treatment approaches that can be applied in people with dysphagia.
